

Thank You, Montgomery.

For 108 unforgettable years, Chris' Famous Hotdogs has proudly called Montgomery home. Since 1917, our little stand at 138 Dexter Avenue has been more than just a place to grab a bite - it's been a gathering spot, a piece of history, and a labor of love passed down through generations.

We've had the honor of serving governors, presidents, athletes, musicians, movie stars, and visitors from around the world. But the true stars of our story have always been you - the people of Montgomery. Your smiles, your stories, your loyalty - they've filled our walls with warmth and our hearts with gratitude.

This journey began with Mr. Chris Katechis, when he emigrated to America from Greece. His approach was simple: to serve good food and treat everyone with respect. That dream was carried on by his son (and my wonderful husband) Theo.

On October 17, I will lovingly pass Chris' into the hands of wonderful new owners - devoted caretakers who share our deep love for Montgomery and its rich traditions. Their family, too, has long-standing roots in this city, and they are committed to honoring the legacy that has made Chris' so special for over a century. I have every confidence that Chris' will remain the same welcoming place to gather with friends, old and new - just as it always has been.

To every person who ever stood in line, shared a meal, or brought a friend to Chris' - thank you. You've been more than customers. You've been family.

Montgomery, you are the soul of this story. In a country full of great cities, there's none we'd rather call home.

From the depth of our hearts - thank you for 108 extraordinary years.

With love and gratitude,

Angia Katechis
